Having no horse of her own she vaulted up behind Forrest, and bravely exposed her life to the bullets of the enemy, while the general led his men under her guldance to the welcome ford.

The sequel can be told in a few words. She remained on the bank of Black Creek long enough to see the last soldier safely over, and then waving her hand she bid them all good-bye, God speed and a splendid victory. Returning home through the open fields alone they sent up a silent prayer for the capture of Col. Streight and his raiders. The answer to that prayer was not long delayed. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten botties. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for ail what it has done for me its will be very great.

Suicide.

Mr. John W. Reese, a well known and respected citizen of the Fern Leaf neighborhood in this county, put an end to his life on Monday by hanging himself at his residence. He was about fifty years of age and had been in ill health for some time past and subject to severe spells of nervous prostration. These are supposed to have affected his mind and prompted the rash act. He was a brother of Mr. D. J. Reese. the school commissioner, and of Messrs. E. J. and Joshua Reese. He leaves a wife and two children.

The fourth passed off in Maysville very quietly. There was very little disorder anywhere in the city.

The Keefer Mill Company, which was incorporated a few days ago, yesterday bought the mill property on Cralg and Fifth streets, from Mr. David Keefer, for $50,000. The ground is 113 by 80 feet, and with it goes the machinery, fixtures and everything pertaining to the business. Yesterday the stockholders of the Keefer Mill Company met and chose Mr. David Keefer as president, and Mr. Geo. D. Keefer as secretary and treasurer for the present year. The work of building the new mill at the terminus of Holman street, will be commenced shortly, and when it is constructed, this well-known firm will further extend it operations and its usefulness. ### The Fascinating Faldetta. [Charles Dudley Warner in the Hartford Courant.]

On the first sight of the women of Malta, gliding about the streets in black, you think they have thrown their skirts over their heads. But they have not. The faldetta is a combination of hood and cape. Take a black silk apron, gather it close at it makes a curve, and the apron falling obliquely across the back. It can be drawn across the face so as to conceal everything except the eyes. And the large eyes of soft brown are the last things you or the women would wish to conceal. The costume is a remnant of the Saracenic days, and is one of the many signs of Moorish descent.

This is a very clumsy description of a most fascinating garment. It gives a piquant interest even to an ugly womanand Providence for our sins still permits ugly women-but it adds a charm to pretty women that is quite bewildering. Mind, this is not my opinion that I venture to give, but that of European ladies whom I have consulted. Perhaps I might not have noticed them otherwise.

All the Maltese ladies, as well as the common people, wear the faldetta to church, though on other occasions European hats are gaining ground with the higher classes. I am speaking at length of this costume because groups of these figures in the street or thronging the churches are the feature of the town. The faldetta is always worn with a black skirt, but some bright color is often worn about the neck, or for the bodice, together with heavy gold necklaces, and the glimpse of this half-hidden warmth of color that the falietta permits in contrast with the prevailing black is very effective. It is perhaps the most coquettish devotional garment ever invented by the contradictory nature of the sex. I have given much reflection (while we are waiting here for a steamer to Gibraltar) to the reason of its peculiar charm, and 1 think it lies in this, that it gives to its wearer the mystifying appearance of a demure nun and a dangerous adventuress. How much the large, soft brown eyes and the creamy Moorish complexion have to do with it is a scientific question. But I am getting beyond my depth. What I wish to say is that if the sex wish to look both devout and fascinating, the faldetta is the best invention of their genius. I am told, however, that it is not a comfortable garment in a warm climate, and that the wearing it tends to produce baldness. And when we get to a bald woman it is time to change the subject.

Mingo Junction, Ohio, July 4-At 9.30 this morning the side-wheel boat Scioto, from Albany, which had been down to Moundsville, W. Va., with an excursion party of five hundred souls, given under the auspices of the Wellsville Brass Band, composed from Wellsville and towns in that vicinity, which was on its return trip, collided with the Lomas just opposite Mingo Junction, in the Ohio River, and the Scioto sank in a few minutes. About two hundred and fifty persons are missing. The scenes at Mingo are indescriba-

From "The Times."

Editor of the Times: Seeing an article in your paper last week from Arnold Parker, I was impressed with the earnestness with which he appeals to you to continue to enlighten the world in regard to the means by which he was so miracuously enred of rheumatism and hipj int lameness by using Kendal!'s Spavin Cure. The article to which he altudes by Dr. Bates, impressed me so favorably with the real merits of this remedy that I tried it also for several blemishes on my horses and found it the most perfect cure I ever tried for spavins and other blemishes, as it completely removes the enlargement in every instance by continuing its use for several days after the lameness had subsided. The perfect success I have laid with Kendall's Spavin Cure led me to use it on my own person, and for all the family with the best results as a family linkmen. While several of the cures made with it have been almost miraculous, none have been more satisfactority than several cures which I made with It of foot-rot and also sore tents as well as the top with several runnings and put a cure for sore teats or foot-rot in either cows or whalebone through one side at the edge, so as to form a hood. Nilsson's Early Life.

London Truth. It is interesting to trace a glorious career to its origin. Mme. Nilsson is the daughter of very poor parents, natives of the province of Gottland. They were jacks-of all-trades, and very musical. Christina had, at a very early age, to do for herself, and was patronized by the owner of a ferry, who took country folks across ore of the many lakes about the town of Wexo. She was started by him as an infant prodigy, and her singing and violin playing drew customers from a rival boat. When she was big enough she "tramped" with her father and mother from fair to fair. It must not be supposed from this that she was on the low level of the English women and children who tramp through Kent in the hop-picking season. Poverty is not so degrading in Sweeden as in Great Britain and, as hospitality is a universal good quality among the peasantry of Scandinavia, Christina was not exposed to degrading hardships in roving childhood. It was at a country fair that an influential Sweedish gentleman discovered her musical genius. His name was Tornerhjelm, and he had heard her sing to a violin accompaniment, which she played herself. At this time she was fourteen. M. Tornerhjelm opened to her successfully the Academies of Holmstadt and Stockholm, obtained for her the protection of the king and Queen, and had her, when she was fit to go to Paris, sent there to study under Wartel. If she forgets these benefits it is unfair to tax her with a short memory for them. What prima donna was evergrateful to a benefactor that she could do without or neglect without serious consequences to herself? A successful operatic star accepts tokens of admiration as her due. Were all the gold of California and diamonds of Brazil piled up and given to her the thanks she might deign to offer in return would be only a polite formality. Nilson's qualities as a lyric artist were manifestly, from the outset of her career, of a very high order. From the moment she obtained an opportunity to sing in public she wanted neither puff nor claque. However, that opportunity she would not have had had it not been for the clever management of M. Tornerjelm. He got hold of the Emperor and Empress of the French through the tist. A wish expressed by them to the Directors of the Theatre Lyrique and the opera house was taken as an order. Christine Nilsson made her debut at the former as Queen of the Night in the "Magic Flute." When she was there Ambroise Thomas wrote for her the score of Ophelia as it now stands. Without fitting well the role, she was admirable in it. Ophelia has not much character. Nilsson has, and always had, a great deal.

Odd Stories.

One of the mementoes of the late Iowa tornado is rooster in summer attire-stripped by the storm of all his feathers save those of his damaged wings. He stalks about the premises as bare as when dressed for the bake oven, and excites much curiosity.

The Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette reports the cutting down of a large apple tree in that city, which was found to have enclosed a fence post. When the tree was cut about it, it fell over, and the post, loose in the center, drew out and broke, a foot or more below the cut. The post is of chestnut as near as can be made out, and must have been enclosed in the tree perhaps one hundred years. The tree, which by grafting bore russet apples, was undoubtedly at the start a wild shoot, which grew to the fence post, and in process of time gradually inclosed and covered it in. The tree trunk is about eleven inches through and the post six inches.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, heid in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to ease without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the haif trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of nolding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, addling, or brewage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 eases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
